SCHROEDER DIES AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Old German Resident Succumbs To Serious Injuries

An automobile accident which occurred on the Rubicon Road two weeks ago resulted fatally for one of its victims on Sunday evening when Mr. Eduard Schroeder, of the firm of Harbeck and Martin, Ltd., 35 Jinkee Road, died at Dr. Fearn's Sanitorium due to the injuries which he sustained.

Funeral services will be held at 5:30 o'clock today at Bubbling Well Cemetery.

The accident came as the sad climax to a Sunday afternoon outing. On Sunday, June 15, deceased went for a motor trip in a hire car, accompanying a friend, Mr. Frentzler, who has but recently arrived in Shanghai as a representative of a firm of German book publishers.

After a visit to Jessfield Park, Mr. Schroeder suggested a trip around the Rubicon. The chauffeur of the car in which Mr. Schroeder and Frentzler were riding, in attempting to pass another motor car at a fairly high rate of speed, lost control and the car left the road and crashed into a tree. Both Mr. Schroeder and Mr. Frentzler were severely injured. Mr. Schroeder suffering a fracture of the spine, and Mr. Frentzler a fracture of the upper arm and severe bruises.

The injured men were discovered by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bena, of No. 90 Jessfield Road, who happened to be motoring by. Mr. Bena applied first aid and then rushed the two men to Dr. Fearn's Sanitorium. An immediate operation was performed on Mr. Schroeder, and for a time it was believed that he might recover, although physicians said that in any event he would be paralyzed. Mr. Frentzler is still in hospital but will recover.

Mr. Schroeder was 43 years old and a native of Hamburg, Germany. He was well known in Shanghai, having spent fifteen years in the Far East. During this time he was connected with Carlowitz and Company and Boyes and Company. During the war, Mr. Schroeder was in California. He returned to Shanghai about a year ago to join the firm of Harbeck and Martin. A brother, who resides in Hamburg, survives him.

LORAIN, OHIO, DEMOLISHED BY TORNADO, SCORES DEAD

Estimates Of Dead Run As High As 300; Loss Heavy

OTHER CITIES HIT

Storm Sweeps Wide Area Near Cleveland; Peoria Suffers

(Reuter's Service)

Cleveland, June 29.—A disastrous tornado has visited parts of Ohio. Three hundred persons are reported to have been killed and at least 1,500 injured in the county of Lorain while the city of Lorain has been wiped out. Details are meagre owing to destruction of communications in the neighborhood but frantic appeals for help are being received from the towns of Sandusky and Elyria which are also in ruins.

(Reuter's American Service)

Cleveland, June 29.—Owing to the confusion following the storm, many wild and exaggerated reports have been given currency. Revised estimates put the casualties at Lorain at 85 killed and 118 injured, while 7,000 are homeless. Further deaths occurred at Sandusky. The Red Cross and other authorities are of the opinion that it will be several days before accurate figures are available.

(Reuter's American Service)

Lorain, Ohio, June 29.—The latest estimate of the dead is between 150 and 300. The loss is estimated at 20,000,000 dollars. A thousand buildings at Lorain were wrecked, and [illegible] Six hundred troops have arrived to preserve order.

(Reuter's American Service)

Cleveland, June 29.—Lorain got the full force of the tornado, which swept an area extending sixty miles from Cleveland. It now presents an appalling sight. Eyewitnesses report that houses toppled over, roofs went flying through the air, trees were mowed down as if by a huge scythe, some walls of houses were blown out and other houses were aflame. The bridge over the river was demolished.

(Reuter's American Service)

Peoria, Ill., June 28.—Five persons were killed and twenty injured by a tornado here. The damage is estimated $1,500,000.

MACLAREN IN HONGKONG; TO BE HERE THIS WEEK, BELIEF

British Flier Making Fine Time Up Coast

RUNS INTO RAIN

Greeted By Governor And Other Officials; Guest Of Regiment

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, June 30.—Squadron-Leader MacLaren has arrived.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, June 30.—Squadron-Leader Maclaren arrived at Haiphong on Sunday evening and left this morning for Hongkong. He is due at three o'clock this afternoon.

(Reuters Pacific Service)

Hongkong, June 30.—Squadron-Leader MacLaren flew from Bangkok to Haiphong in the same day, stopping for half an hour at Vinh. He left Haiphong for Hongkong at ten this morning. There was intermittent rain and mist and a slight rolling sea. At about 2.15 the aeroplane was descried making for the Harbor through the Sulphur Channel. The flier's approach was signalised by the sirens of the waiting steam-launches and motorboats, including those of the Governor and the Naval and Military Authorities.

Very gracefully the flying boat landed on Laichikok Bay where the Standard-Oil Co. of New York had arranged a mooring buoy. Vociferous cheers greeted Squadron-Leader MacLaren whose boat was towed by the steamlaunch, Binghy, belonging to the Asiatic Petroleum Co., who supervised the landing.

The Governor and other officials met the aviator and his colleagues on board the A.P.C. launch. The Governor shook hands with him, saying, "Very glad to see you MacLaren." Squadron-Leader MacLaren informed the Governor that the last 200 miles from Haiphong was not so good but before that the flight was quite good.

It is understood that MacLaren will be the guest of the East Surrey Regiment's Mess and will probably stay in Hongkong for one or two days.

From the above it is apparent that Squadron-leader MacLaren is making excellent time, and it is apparent that if his progress continues at the same rate he should be in Shanghai the latter part of this week.

Legations Are On Chinese Territory By Sufferance Only, Says Koo In Note

Peking Foreign Chief Refuses To Say Russian Legation Be Turned Over To Soviet Representative

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking June 30.—The Waichiaopu in a further Note to M. Oudendijk, the Netherlands Minister and Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps, on June 27 with reference to the handing over of the Russian Legation cites two facts, mentioned in the Note of June 11, and says in reply that the assumption by the representatives of the signatory Powers of responsibility for the guarding of the buildings and premises of the former Russian Legation was undertaken by them without the consent of the Chinese Government, although it was occasioned by the termination of the Russian diplomatic representation in China, and the Waichiaopu's reply of April 15, 1921, only referred to the security of the said property during the period it remained in the custody of the said representatives.

How long such custody should last is a question which in its origin does not fall within the discretion of the said representatives, but must rather depend upon the decision of China to restore relations with the new Government. suggestion of the signatories to the Protocol that they would consider handing the Legation over only on the request of the accredited Russian representative appears to overlook the special interest of the Chinese Government to see the Legation handed back to the authorised Russian representative.

It will be recalled that the Diplomatic Quarter, though placed under the control of the foreign Legations by the Protocol of 1901, remains part of Chinese territory and that the premises of the Russian Legation, though situated in the said Quarter, are themselves not subject to the control of representatives of other Powers. Indeed, they cannot be subject to such control as they are the property of a foreign Power, with which China has again established diplomatic relations and which is anxious to take possession through its authorised representative for use as its Legation.

In asking for the delivery of the premises, the Chinese Government sought only to extend to the foreign Government an act of friendly assistance. "They feel more concerned because, I may add for your information, it is their desire to discharge the obligation which they have undertaken vis-a-vis the Soviet in the Sino-Russian Agreement."

The Note argues that the Chinese Government is the natural channel for handing over the Legation and contends that the conventional status of the Diplomatic Quarter should not make it difficult for the signatories of the Protocol to comply with this request, since China has not asked to take control herself, but has merely requested the handing over of the Legation to the Soviet representative.

In view of the foregoing, the Chinese Government requests the handing over of the premises as early as possible to the Soviet Government, which has appointed M. Schwarsalan as its duly authorised representative to receive and take possession of the Legation.

The Note concludes with the hope that the signatories of the Protocol will see their way to arrange compliance as any other course would not only embarrass the Chinese Government, but would also appear to prejudice the rights of foreign Powers to establish Legations on Chinese territory free from any other condition than the consent of the Chinese Government. The Note is signed by Dr. Wellington Koo.

DEMOCRATS' PLATFORM ASKS REFERENDUM ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Effort To Have Klan Denounced By Name Fails; Party Declares U. S. Lacks Foreign Policy Under Republicans; Candidate May Be Named Today

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, June 28.—The Democratic Convention platform proposes a national referendum on the subject of the entry of the United States into the League of Nations with reservations for amendments to the League Covenant as agreed with the President and Senate. It pledges the party to an international policy of cooperation and sweeping reductions in land and sea forces. It advocates the United States securing an international agreement with regard to armaments, and suggests a referendum for war, except in cases of actual or threatened attack.

The platform condemns prohibitive tariff and pledges itself to tariff adjustment. It accuses the Republicans of failure to develop an American flag shipping policy. It promises to maintain the established position for the exclusion of Asiatic immigration. It avers that the United States is without a foreign policy, and that the Democrats intend to secure for America the moral leadership of the family of nations.

The Chairman of the Platform Committee, Mr. Cummings, moved the adoption of the majority platform unaltered and unamended.

The document opened with a tribute to Mr. Woodrow Wilson and affirmed abiding faith in his ideals. It promised further reduction of taxes; revision of the import tariff; recovery of oil-reserves "fraudulently leased" and vigorous prosecution of any guilty of wrongdoing in the leasing transactions; and operation of a Government-owned merchant-marine. It bespoke retention of Asiatic immigration exclusion, and promised immediate independence for the Philippines, protection of American rights in Turkey, and the fulfilment of President Wilson's award respecting Armenia.

With regard to the League of Nations the document promised to outlaw the whole war system, declaring that the only hope of world peace and economic security lay in the organised efforts of the sovereign nations co-operating to remove the causes of war and to substitute law and order for violence.

Ex-Secretary for War Baker's minority platform urged immediate joining of the League of Nations. It declared that the Republican policy of isolation was as revolting in its spiritual aspects as it was harmful in its material consequences. It predicted that the Wilson policies would sweep the country at the coming election. The document averred that there had not been a true referendum at the last Presidential election on the League as that issue was interwoven with many others.

Mr. Baker in an emotional speech said that the man who ought to be pleading for the proposed plank lay dead, but his voice was calling from consecrated ground.

The Convention rejected the Baker substitute and adopted the majority platform.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, June 28.—When the Democratic Convention assembled this morning, it was expected that the platform would be submitted for ratification, but, owing to differences in the platform committee, it was not ready. Mr. Cummings, the Chairman of the Committee, promised that the platform would be ready in a few hours. He announced that on the League of Nations plank there would be a minority report presented by Mr. Baker, the ex-Secretary for War. With regard to the Religious Freedom plank, by which the Ku Klux Klan is meant, Mr. Cummings said that the committee had discussed the question throughout the night and wanted more time, as they did not wish to bring religious differences on to the floor of the Convention, tired and worn with lack of sleep since Tuesday. Mr. Cummings, amid a dramatic silence, described how after the all-night session the members of the Committee at dawn joined in unison in the Lord's Prayer, after which Mr. William Jennings Bryan prayed for Divine guidance.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, June 29.—The Democratic Convention rejected the Ku Klux Klan minority report, which provided for specific mentioning of the Klan in the platform.

The Convention was almost equally divided on the Klux Klan issue, the majority report winning by a single vote.

Mr. Baker's substitute League plank was defeated by 742 votes to 353.

INITIAL SHOW OF OSCAR WILDE'S PLAY SUCCESSFUL

Large Audience Greets "Lady Windermere's Fan" To Repeat Today

A full attendance of American returned students and their families greeted the initial performance of Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan" last night at the Olympic Theater. The amateurs, with which the performance was given by the [illegible] Society and the [illegible] Dramatic Club, actors and actresses fully justified the appreciative audience and Mr. Shen Hung, who adapted the drama in Chinese, should be congratulated for the excellent way in which it was produced.

The success of the show lies in the fact that Mr. Hung has refrained from taking the original version mechanically but has taken the skeleton of the author's plot and dressed it with new flesh and apparel so that it could be understood and appreciated by a Chinese audience. Even the scene of the play has been shifted to Shanghai with all the characters giving a full display of local color. Much of the author's comedy, philosophy and sarcasm was lost in the present production, but this is replaced cleverly by the Chinese translator with Oriental humor and snappy sayings of the Chinese stage.

With the exception of the partaking by the characters of whisky-and-soda and another equally Western luxury in the form of a "letter of separation," there is nothing Occidental about the play. The audience which consisted mostly of Chinese, little realised that the play was originally for European or English consumption.

If produced in some interior city, perhaps adverse criticism might be advanced on account of the moral aspect of the plot. But Shanghai is advanced enough to appreciate the most intricate phases of social live in Europe and Mr. Hung has taken advantage of the situation with a cleverness equal to that of the author.

The performance will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock. A good many foreign dramatic enthusiasts were also spectators at last night's show.

EGYPT'S PREMIER, SORE OVER SUDAN, TRIES TO RESIGN

Zaghlul Pasha Says Country Will Never Renounce Rights

(Reuter's Service)

Cairo, June 29.—The Prime Minister, Zaghlul Pasha, has gone to Alexandria to tender his resignation.

(Reuter's American Service)

Cairo, June 29.—Zaghlul Pasha's departure for Alexandria was in accordance with the decision he announced in the Chamber yesterday evening in the course of a speech replying to Lord Parmoor's speech in the House of Lords. Zaghlul Pasha declared that Egypt would never renounce her rights to the Sudan and he himself would never negotiate with the British Government on the basis of the declaration of February 19, 1922. He had hoped that the Labor Government would support the case of liberty but unfortunately it followed the same lines as the imperialistic Government. Zaghlul Pasha concluded by declaring that if he were unable to get satisfaction he would resign and submit the matter to the King.

(Reuter's Service)

Cairo, June 29.—After Zaghlul Pasha's speech the Chamber passed a unanimous vote of confidence in him and requested him to retain the Premiership until all national aspirations were realised respecting the independence of Egypt and the Sudan. RUSS CONSULATE AT TIENTSIN IS GIVEN TO SOVIET

Difficulties Attend The Transfer Of Property Here

Peking, June 27.—The Russian Consulate at Tientsin was handed over to the Soviet representative today, and arrangements have been completed for the Soviet Consul to take over the Hankow Russian Consulate on July 1. Some difficulties have arisen over the Russian Consulate at Shanghai, owing it is explained officially, to a misunderstandng on the part of the Chinese Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai, not to any opposition on the part of the Settlement Authorities.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, June 28.—The Waichiaopu on June 28 once again addressed a Note to the Diplomatic Body, pointing out that there was no reason why the Diplomatic Body should interfere with the question concerning the transfer of the Russian Legation, and insisting that the Legation referred to should be handed over to the Soviet delegate without delay.

MANY SEIZURES OF OPIUM MADE ON VESSELS HERE

Of Unlabelled Narcotics Into Port Increases

Peking, June 27.—The International Anti-Opium Association states that during the quarter ended on June 18, 1924, there were seized by the Maritime Customs, Shanghai:

216 packets containing 119 lb. of morphia, manufactured by Marck, Germany, seized on the S.S. Latvia, also 40 tins containing 1,000 ounces of heroin, seized on the S.S. Aschen. The latte seizure was unlabelled both as to name of drug and manufacturer.

During the last twelve months the seizure of unlabelled narcotics has greatly increased. During the same quarter in 1923, in nine seizures representing three different countries and comprising nearly 4,000 ounces of narcotic, only one seizure of sixty odd ounces was not labelled either as to drug or manufacturer.

With the increasing activities of the League of Nations in connection with drug traffic there is a growing desire to avoid detection on the part of manufacturer.

DISCOURTESY BY PETTY OFFICIALS AT JAPAN PORT

American Travellers Subjected To Unusual Treatment By Customs Men

The arrival of the Admiral Line steamer President Madison from Seattle at Yokohama late last Tuesday afternoon was marked by an unusually rigorous customs inspection, aimed especially at Americans and characterised by a discourtesy far out of keeping with the usual treatment accorded tourists by the Japanese customs service, reports the Japan Advertiser of June 25.

The inspection was carried out by an official stationed at the shore end of the Customs Pier and was in force for approximately one hour, beginning half an hour before the President Madison docked and lasting until a complaint had been lodged with the United States Consulate, an investigation started and higher officials of the customs service intervened to restore the usual courtesy.

WIDELY DISCOURTEOUS

Americans passing from the pier to the shore were hailed in rude tones by the official. Some were asked as a preliminary to the examination, "Are you American?" Receiving affirmative answers, the official began an examination marked by extreme discourtesy. Some of those examined were compelled to remove their shoes and to stand on the floor of the Customs' shed, which was wet.

Among those who underwent this experience was a lady, American-born but now a Japanese subject by naturalisation. When asked if she were American, she replied that she was Japanese. The official replied that he did not believe her, that she was American, and then proceeded to examine her baggage thoroughly, and compelled her to remove her shoes.

AGENT EXAMINED

Among those examined was Mr. Ralph Norris, passenger agent of the Admiral Line, known to practically every person on Yokohama waterfront. Mr. Norris went through the examination a few minutes before the President Madison docked, when there was not a single steamer berthed at the Customs Pier.

Americans made a report of the matter to the United States Consulate and Vice-Consul L. M. Green proceeded to the customs office and began an investigation.

About half an hour after the President Madison had docked a higher official of the Customs Service arrived on the scene and restored the usual conditions of courtesy and consideration for foreigners.

Several newspaper men were witnesses of the examinations, including a dozen Japanese reporters and representative of two of the largest American news agencies.

SOUTH AFRICANS GET 273 IN FIRST INNING OF TEST

Catterall Best Batsman With 120 Runs To His Credit

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 28.—The weather was fine but cloudy at the opening of the Second Test Match between England and South Africa at Lord's today. Ten thousand people watched the game. The wicket was excellent. The South Africans won the toss.

The King arrived at 12.50. The game was stopped and the players lined up to be introduced and shake hands.

Taylor and Commaille opened the innings, but were soon parted, Taylor being caught by Wood off Gilligan for 4 and Commaille being bowled for 0. Susskind was than joined by Nourse, but he put one into Wooley's hands when he had made 4. Susskind with 44 and Catterall with 17 were in partnership at the lunch interval, the score being 72 for 3 wickets.

In the afternoon the crowd doubled. The 100 was hoisted on the board after 143 minutes. Susskind played a very sound game throughout and was very strong on the off side. He hit six 4s during his innings of 185 minutes. He was caught by Tate off Hearne when he had made 64. The score then stood at 129 for 4 wickets.

Catterall reached his century in 170 minutes. His brilliant off-driving and hitting to square leg gained him an ovation from the crowd, when he was bowled by a magnificent ball from Gilligan, after having batted for 195 minutes for a score of 120. He gave one chance at 30. He hit sixteen 4s. Blanckenberg had meanwhile joined him, but was bowled by Tate for 12. The score when Catterall was bowled was 212 for 6 wickets. Deane and Faulkner were in partnership at the tea interval, when the telegraph read 217 for 8 wickets.

The Africans were all out at 5.50 for 273. Deane, who made 33, showed some vigorous driving, and Faulkner's batting in many strokes was reminiscent of his old form. He made 25. The remaining wickets fell quickly.

President Taft Resumes Run To China Coast

The Pacific Mail S.S. Company has just received advices from San Francisco that the s.s. "President Taft" completed her trial trip last Tuesday and will be ready to sail from San Francisco for the Orient on July 8th her regular sailing day.

The ss "President Taft" has been in the dry dock at San Francisco since March 6th last. During that time she has been thoroughly overhauled and renovated, at a cost of G$400,000.00, and she is now, again a new ship, ready to take her place in the trans-Pacific service of the Pacific Mail.

During her trial trip the s.s. "President Taft" attained a speed of 19 knots which is half a knot greater than she could make before overhauling.

Completely refurnished and refitted in every respect the "Taft" will arrive in Shanghai on July 29th under that old favorite of trans-Pacific travellers, Captain John Moreno, who returns to the bridge after some months spent shore side.

The Opinions of a Customer

One of our savings depositors told us the other day:

"In my opinion there are three reasons why I should deposit regularly in a SAVINGS ACCOUNT:

"I. Because it provides me with capital for emergencies or opportunities.

"II. Because it enables me to enlist compound interest to work for me.

"III. Because it gives me the habit of thrift"

Comparison

It is obvious that where claims are made, comparison is inevitable. Comparison of the NEW Columbia Grafonola with ordinary gramophones has given it a place in music that no other gramophone has attained in so short a space of time. Comparison of the "NEW PROCESS" Records (without Scratch) with ordinary records reveals all the deficiencies of the latter.

To hear either one is to enjoy but one-half of a great achievement. To hear them in combination is to experience the sensation of a new experience. But to hear them in comparison with ordinary gramophones is to understand the enthusiasm of master musicians and music-lovers alike.

Notice To Subscribers

In an endeavor to produce an even better paper than was formerly the case—an endeavor which the steadily growing popularity of THE CHINA PRESS has proved to be successful—the publishers have recently increased the editorial staff, supplemented the cable and foreign correspondence services, added a pictorial news section, and improved the editorial and feature contents. These improvements naturally entail a much heavier cost of production, and thus we are reluctantly compelled to increase our rates of subscription, as from April 1st, as follows:

One Year	Mex.	$28.00
Six Months	"	15.00
Four Months	"	10.50
One Month	"	2.75

Postage to outports, etc. $6.00 per annum extra.

Under the new rates subscribers will still obtain THE CHINA PRESS more cheaply than it can be purchased day by day on the street. Allowing 312 publishing days to the year (260 weekdays and 52 Sundays), the annual cost, if purchased on the street, is $36.40.

Two sea lions from California, which were added to the Scottish Zoo at Edinburgh only this week, have already had an adventure there. The Zoo is situated in Corstorphine, a fashionable suburb of the city. One night it was discovered they had in some mysterious way escaped from their enclosure and had got out of the extensive park occupied by the Zoo. They were found disporting in a stream over a mile away. How they got over intervening obstacles is inexplicable. Armed with nets, members of the Zoo staff captured them but not without some difficulty. The sea lions were restored to their pond, from which they will find it less easy to escape again.

WIDE RANGE OF LECTURES FOR SUMMER SCHOOL

Noted Speakers To Be Heard By Science Teachers

The appended list of speakers with their subjects will give some idea of the wide range and the excellence of the addresses which are to be given before the Summer Institute for Science Teachers which is to be held at Tsinghua College this summer.

The Institute is under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Education and will begin its work promptly on the morning of the 10th of July.

Half-rates on the trunk railways have been granted to those who are attending and the number in the classes has been limited so that the best results can be obtained in the instruction, where stress is placed on the methods of teaching.

Courses are being given in biology, chemistry and physics under a very carefully selected faculty. The applications for admission to these courses have been twice as many as could be accommodated and it is hoped that another year provision may be made for a much larger number.

Following is the list of lectures and their subjects:

Gallopers Take First Game Of Series From Manchas, Maloney Goes On Rampage

Mal Cracks Out Three Bagger That Takes Steam Out Of Japanese Pitcher, After Which Mates Add Finishing Touches; Fast Fielding Plays

By Westa

When Mal Maloney was a boy in school the teacher asked the class one day what was the most important part of a railroad. At this question Mal was on his feet instantly, waving his arms and barking that he knew what was the most important part of a railroad.

"Very well," said the teacher, "you may tell us, Maloney."

"The engine!" said Mal, triumphantly.

"Certainly not," said the teacher, at which the future ball tosser was completely flabbergasted, for he had been absolutely sure that the engine was by far the most important part of a railroad.

Then a little girl in pig tails put up her hand and when the teacher asked her the same question she replied timidly that the most important part of a railroad was the wrecking crew.

"Correct," said the teacher, who looked sternly at young Maloney, cowering in his seat. "And you should be ashamed of yourself, Maloney," she added, "for permitting a little girl to know more about a railroad than you do."

Well, tempus fugited, as tempus has a habit of doing, and the school day episode gradually faded from Mal's mind, or rather it faded into the back of his mind, where it lay dormant until Sunday afternoon.

Sunday afternoon Mal was out there with the rest of the Gallopers, engaged in combat with the Manshus, and as he walked up to bat the picture of the little girl in pigtails flitted into his mind.

"She was right about it, after all," Mal thought, and therefore, seeing that these birds are railroaders I will proceed to supply them with the most important part of a railroad, the same being a wrecking crew."

And suiting the action to the brainstorm, Mal busted one to deep centerfield that wrecked them, sure enough.

The score was knotted at the time, and the Manshus was getting more confident every minute. Mal was the first man up and when orp came over to his liking he whanged it so far into the rhubarbs that three relays were required to get it back. Mal could have got home easily enough but there was nobody out, so he stopped at third.

That was the undoing of the Manshu flinger. After that wallop there was no steam left in his cylinders, with the result that Mal's mates began to pound him all over the lot. Three runs came in before the inning was over and probably as many more would have counted if Buck Taylor hadn't pulled a John Anderson at third.

This trio was sufficient, however, seeing that Verne Claire was refusing to so much as let the visitors walk on the track, to say nothing of lolling on the plush, as they had planned.

The game was featured by numerous scintillating fielding plays, including a fine grab of a grounder back of third by Fred Bullard and a shoestring catch by John Scott in right.

(Reuter's Service)

In the fourth round the African competitor, Mr. Raymond, beat Mr. Wheatley, a member of the British Davis Cup team, 7-5, 6-0, 6-0.

The Belgian champion, M. Jean Washer, defeated Mr. Norman Brookes, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.

(Reuter's Service)

Wimbledon, June 28.—There were 25,000 spectators at the Lawn Tennis Championships here today.

The most surprising event of the day was the failure of Norman Brookes, who was the hero of the week after defeating Francis Hunter, but he only glimpsed his true form. Washer, driving with great force and accuracy wore down the Australian.

England fared badly in the fourth round, her two chief hopes being eliminated. Lacoste defeated Gilbert 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, while Raymond outclassed Wheatley. Only Kingscote, who beat Jacob 7-3, 6-4, 6-3, is left of the prominent players.

Borotra, who defeated Spence in a terrific battle 6-2, 14-12, 3-6, 6-0, and the Americans, Washington and Williams, entered the fifth round.

In the doubles second round by brilliant play Hunter and Richards defeated Brugnon and Feret 6-0, 5-7, 6-1, 5-7, 6-1.

In the first round of the Mixed Doubles Lycett and Miss Ryan, the holders, had a hard fight to beat Spence and Miss Austin 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Mrs. Shepherd-Barron, Mrs. Satterthwaite and Miss McKane advanced to the fourth round of the singles.

In the fourth round Washburn beat the Australian Watt 0-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

In the third round the American, Mrs. Jessup, beat Miss Holcroft 6-1, 6-3.

In the second round the South African Condon, partnered by Mrs. Mallery, beat the Americans, C. Fischer and Miss Igourney 6-3, 6-4. Williams and Mrs. Wightman beat J. Hillyard and Mrs. Satterthwaite.

Risks Children Run
In The Far East

In China and the tropical East babies and young children are subject to much greater health risks than are those who live in America or Europe, for reasons associated with climatic conditions and environment. Every thoughtful parent knows this, and should take precautions accordingly.

One of the best safeguards for the health of your little ones is to be found in Baby's Own Tablets, a medicine especially prepared for the use of children, and guaranteed absolutely whole, some and safe for even the youngest infant. The following testimony to their merits comes from Mr. D. L. M. Hanlit, of Messrs. Whiteaway Laidlaw & Co., Ipoh, F. M. S., who writes:—

"My little son was subject to children's complaints such as fever, stomach-ache, gripe, etc. I sought medical advice but all to no purpose. Then I tried Baby's Own Tablets and they made a wonderful change. My boy has no complaints now, has an excellent appetite, and is the very likeness of health."

The first effect of Baby's Own Tablets is to gently move the bowels. Then they cool feverishness, relieve indigestion, colic, croup, or colds, check diarrhoea, allay teething pains expel worms, quiet the nerves, promote restful health-giving sleep. Chemists sell them, also post free, 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

A Colum Of Verse

MATERNITY
(From The Yale Review)

I must go all my days
Softly as snow, whose wings
Follow the hidden ways
Of unimagined springs.

My stricken heart is caught
In briers of surprise;
Its beats are hushed as thought,
And eloquent as eyes.

I cry God pity them
Whose joy is boisterous,
Since I have touched the hem
Of the miraculous.

BABETTE DEUTSCH.

THIS IS MY PORTFOLIO
(From Voices)

This is my portfolio
Of things that take me as they go:
Flicker of fins; the crisp cool sting
Of air lit wild by some swift wing;
Leaves that star my window-ledge;
Rain slanting to one silver edge
With the drops pulled long, like thin
Harmonics on a violin.

Wind-mists winding down a bog
Make music in my catalogue;
The rich round klup of horses feet
Anvilling an empty street;
Even a whistle that cracks the night
From some far engine dazed with flight
Like the peak of a giant arpeggio
Crashes through my portfolio.

JOSEPH AUSLANDER.

THE GOOD HOUR
(From Voices)

The man who met a phalanx with their spears
And gave his life in one sharp sacrifice,
Knew nothing of the agony of years,
Or what man can endure before he dies.

Some men die early and are spared much care,
Some suddenly, escaping worse than death;
But he is fortunate who happens where
He can exult and die in the same breath.

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

A LADY
(From Paralassus)

Quaint with considered niceties her speech,
In texture soft as mullein leaves, was heard,
And never thoughts ambiguously blurred
Were honored by her utterance, but each
Seemed chosen for its worth. She lived to teach
The truths she had been taught, and laughter's note
Sealed sorrow in the dungeon of her throat—
Her pride of pain exceeded common reach.

Submitting to hard fate with such an air
Of conquest that we envied her defeat,
As though her empty coffers were replete
With something more than nothingness, she gave
Of scanty treasure till her heart was bare,
And made the giving prodigal and brave.

SEEK MURDERERS OF MILLIONAIRE'S KIDNAPED SON

ROBERT FRANKS, MR & MRS FRANKS & JACOB FRANKS JR. RANSOM LETTER. WHERE BODY WAS FOUND & FRANKS HOME.

Spurred on by rewards offered by Jacob Franks, multi-millionaire Chicago manufacturer, police of Chicago are centering their activities on finding the kidnapers and assassins of Frank's fourteen-year-old son and heir, Robert. The boy disappeared on his way from a private school to his father's palatial home. Later, this letter, couched in perfect English, was received, demanding $10,000 ransom. Before the lad's father could comply, the boy's body was found in this culvert, far from his home. A strange turn was given to the case by the fact that a pair of spectacles was found on his face, though he had never worn spectacles in his life. Mr. and Mrs. Franks have one other son, Jacob, Jr. It has been proved that at the time the ransom letter was received the boy was already dead.

With caution of the springing cat.
Her little white hands had no claws
That one who spoke with her could see
But some old instinct made me pause
Watchful, when she spoke to me.

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

WISDOM
(From The London Observer)

Say to your girl the sands are running,
Tell her this of old wisdom and cunning
(I am remembering my own days),
That not one hour of her bliss be wasted,
No kiss forgiven, no lost untasted
(I am remembering my own days);
Tell your boy 't is his hour of plenty,
Only once is he golden and twenty
(I am remembering my own days).
Bid him build, since beyond recover
Fleet the days of the loved and lover
(I am remembering my own days).

KATHARINE TYNAN.

THE SCARF
(From Voices)

I have waked in the night to listen
In the greening of the year,
To the silken sounds of rain-drops
And found it good to hear.

I have caught the fluttered silence
To me like a soft shawl,
And lightly wrapped me in the comfort
Of hearing thin rain fall.

HAZEL HALL.

HIGHROAD
(From Voices)

Sand of a desert made me first,
The young sphinx smiled my start,
By dying pilgrims I was nursed—
Hunger was my chart.

Sails of Phoenicia swept my breast
Daring a drunken wind;
I am the brick the legions pressed—
Rome they left behind.

My belt of steel has bound the plains,
Hill to hill I link,
No height, no depth my hand restrains—
Distance is meat and drink.

Let no man doubt my grinding need,
When I have turned aside,
Though people prayed and kings decreed—
The fairest city died.

Peking, June 27.—Marshal Chang Tso-lin is officially reported to be adopting a much more conciliatory attitude towards the Sino-Russian agreement within the past few days. He now merely insists that his views shall be considered regarding Manchurian questions in the forthcoming Sino-Russian negotiations. While no official information on the question can be obtained, it is understood that Marshal Chang still claims that the Chinese Eastern Railway is a Manchurian question and that no definite settlement can be made regarding the railway without his approval.

A Colum Of Verse

MATERNITY
(From The Yale Review)

I must go all my days
Softly as snow, whose wings
Follow the hidden ways
Of unimagined springs.

My stricken heart is caught
In briers of surprise;
Its beats are hushed as thought,
And eloquent as eyes.

I cry God pity them
Whose joy is boisterous,
Since I have touched the hem
Of the miraculous.

BABETTE DEUTSCH.

THIS IS MY PORTFOLIO
(From Voices)

This is my portfolio
Of things that take me as they go:
Flicker of fins; the crisp cool sting
Of air lit wild by some swift wing;
Leaves that star my window-ledge;
Rain slamming to one silver edge
With the drops pulled long, like thin
Harmonics on a violin.

Wind-mists winding down a bog
Make music in my catalogue;
The rich round klup of horses' feet
Anvilling an empty street;
Even a whistle that cracks the night
From some far engine dazed with flight
Like the peak of a giant arpeggio
Crashes through my portfolio.

JOSEPH AUSLANDER.

THE GOOD HOUR
(From Voices)

The man who met a phalanx with their spears
And gave his life in one sharp sacrifice,
Knew nothing of the agony of years,
Or what man can endure before he dies.

Some men die early and are spared much care,
Some suddenly, escaping worse than death;
But he is fortunate who happens where
He can exult and die in the same breath.

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

A LADY
(From Parnassus)

Quaint with considered niceties her speech,
In texture soft as mullein leaves, was heard.
And never thoughts ambiguously blurred
Were honored by her utterance, but each
Seemed chosen for its worth. She lived to teach
The truths she had been taught, and laughter's note
Sealed sorrow in the dungeon of her throat—
Her pride of pain exceeded common reach.

Submitting to hard fate with such an air
Of conquest that we envied her defeat,
As though her empty coffers were replete
With something more than nothingness, she gave
Of scanty treasure till her heart was bare,
And made the giving prodigal and brave.

AMANDA BENJAMIN HALL.

PORTRAIT

The older generations sat,
Cool, greedy and alert and wise.

SEEK MURDERERS OF MILLIONAIRE'S KIDNAPED SON

ROBERT FRANKS, MR & MRS FRANKS & JACOB FRANKS JR. RANSOM LETTER. WHERE BODY WAS FOUND & FRANKS HOME.

Spurred on by rewards offered by Jacob Franks, multi-millionaire Chicago manufacturer, police of Chicago are centering their activities on finding the kidnapers and assassins of Frank's fourteen-year-old son and heir, Robert. The boy disappeared on his way from a private school to his father's palatial home. Later, this letter, couched in perfect English, was received, demanding $10,000 ransom. Before the lad's father could comply, the boy's body was found in this culvert, far from his home. A strange turn was given to the case by the fact that a pair of spectacles was found on his face, though he had never worn spectacles in his life. Mr. and Mrs. Franks have one other son, Jacob, Jr. It has been proved that at the time the ransom letter was received the boy was already dead.

With caution of the springing cat.
Her little white hands had no claws
That one who spoke with her could see
But some old instinct made me pause
Watchful, when she spoke to me.

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

WISDOM
(From The London Observer)

Say to your girl the sands are running,
Tell her this of old wisdom and cunning
(I am remembering my own days),
That not one hour of her bliss be wasted,
No kiss forgiven, no joy untasted,
(I am remembering my own days);
Tell your boy 't is his hour of plenty,
Only once is he golden and twenty
(I am remembering my own days).
Bid him build, since beyond recover
Fleet the days of the loved and lover
(I am remembering my own days).

KATHARINE TYNAN.

THE SCARF
(From Voices)

I have waked in the night to listen
In the greening of the year,
To the silken sounds of raindrops
And found it good to hear.

I have caught the fluttered silence
To me like a soft shawl,
And lightly wrapped me in the comfort
Of hearing thin rain fall.

HAZEL HALL.

HIGHROAD
(From Voices)

Sand of a desert made me first,
The young sphinx smiled my start,
By dying pilgrims I was nursed—
Hunger was my chart.

Sails of Phoenicia swept my breast
Daring a drunken wind;
I am the brick the legions pressed—
Rome they left behind.
My belt of steel has bound the plains,
Hill to hill I link,
No height, no depth my hand restrains—
Distance is meat and drink.
Let no man doubt my grinding need,
When I have turned aside,
Though people prayed and kings decreed—
The fairest city died.

CHEN ACQUITED BUT MEMBERS OF STAFF GO TO JAIL

Colonel Freed Because Bessel Could Not Identify Him

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 29.—The peculiar reluctance shown throughout to state the full facts concerning the Bessel case had an effect of creating public dissatisfaction which probably would not have been justified if much of the unnecessary secrecy had not been shown. For instance, the press generally referred to the case as the re-trial of Colonel Chen whereas it transpires that Sir Ronald Macleay's request, with which the Chinese Government complied was, for the re-trial of Mr. Bessel's assailants. On this action Colonel Chen Kuo-hsien and the latter's guards, Li Chao-lin, Miao Yung-hao and also Liu Chin-lien (who is described as a member of Colonel Chen's staff) were re-tried.

The verdict was acquittal of Colonel Chen based on Mr. Bessel's inability to indentify the Colonel and the evidence that the latter had sent subordinates to arrange the attaching of the special car to the Tientsin train, the Court thinking it feasible that Colonel Chen himself had not left the special car and hurriedly crossed the line to perform a duty which his subordinates might carry out. These details are not given in the published text of the alleged finding but there is reason to believe that they are correct. Li Chao-lin and Miao Yung-mao were sentenced to three months' imprisonment for preventing public service and also to 26 months' imprisonment for inflicting grevious bodily harm to Mr. Bessel. Liu Ching-lan was sentenced to five months' imprisonment for assisting in the assault.

Technically the case is still sub judice but the ministry of war, after asserting that the Chinese regulations necessitated a trial in camera, thereby preventing publication of the evidence which is of great public interest, has now seen fit to allow leakage of the judgment without awaiting an official communication of it to the British Legation by the Waichiaopu. Possibly the leakage was permitted in order to test public opinion in advance and the official text may contain a review of evidence more satisfying than the brief text published in Chinese semi-official organs.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 29.—Mr. Weatherbe has appealed against the judgment delivered by Mr. E. W. Turner, British Consul in Peking, in the case in which he was charged with having assaulted an Octroi official named Liu Kuai-yuan.

Glenamoy Makes Port After Going Upon Rocks

GLENAMOY ON ROCKS

The Glenamoy, motorship of the Glen Line which went on the rocks at Video Island on May 11 in a thick fog was brought to Shanghai yesterday under steam, though towed also by one of the boats of the Tokio Salvage Company. The vessel, somewhat lower in ballast than her regular line, tied up at the International Dock of the Shanghai Dock and Engineering Co. She will be lightened of the remainder of her cargo and then will go into dock for repairs.

Much of the cargo was taken out after the crash by the Shanghai Tug and Lighter Co., and later by the Tokio Salvage Co., but a considerable amount of submarine cable still remains in the ship. It was consigned to Nagasaki and has been contained in special tanks.

When the Glenamoy ran on the rocks at Video Island in the heavy fog, her bow was punctured to a depth of many feet by the jagged stones. These hampered the work of getting the vessel off. Finally the Salvage Co. managed to cofferdam the forehold and by pumping water into the after part of the ship an excellent piece of work—was able to get the ship free.

They took on the proposition on a basis of "No cure, no pay" and scored a distinct triumph.

The whole forward part of the bottom was punctured and ripped to a considerable extent and the ship went to Beal Island well down in the water—as, in fact, she came here. A good deal of work was done at Beal Island before the Glenamoy could proceed to Shanghai.

Paris Chamber O.K's Ruhr Credit

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 28.—The Chamber of Deputies today by 456 votes to 26 approved the Ruhr credits, which M. Herriot made a question of confidence. The Socialists voted with the majority.

This is the first time that any Socialists have voted for the Ruhr credits to which they are opposed on principle. The Socialist leader, M. Blum, declared in the afternoon that all Socialists would abstain from voting but M. Herriot, by making it a question of confidence, constituted the vote a test of discipline. The whole of the Left Bloc and a number of Socialists abstained but many voted for the credits. Practically the whole of the Opposition voted for the credits. Only the Communists voted against them and demanded immediate evacuation of the Ruhr. M. Herriot replied that immediate evacuation was impossible in the interests of reparations and also of security. He pointed out that voting for the credits did not imply approval of the policy of occupation but the status quo in the Ruhr was necessary pending the issue of the forthcoming inter-Allied negotiations.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 28.—Commenting on M. Herriot's statement the Petit Parisien writes: M. Herriot wished to emphasise that France like the other Allies is doing everything necessary to smooth the way for the Dawes plan and to enter an era of conciliation, in spite of the opposition of the Nationalist leader, Admiral von Tirpitz.

The German reply to the Franco-British note on the control of armaments will be agreement in principle to the Allied demand. It will be sent to Paris today.

125 Nations Now Have Ratified Labor Conference

(Reuter's service)

Geneva, June 28.—At the International Labor Conference M. Albert Thomas announced that ratification of the conventions adopted by the Conference had now been received from Japan, Austria, Spain, Ireland and Poland, bringing the total from 36 to 125, the progress of social reform in China, notably the eight-hour day for children and the prohibition of night-work for women and young persons. He declared that China keenly desired to collaborate in the work of the Conference, but regretted that inadequate support of the other extra-European countries, for example, Canada, New Zealand and Australia.

The committee of delegates appointed to study the prevention of anthrax adopted by a majority the resolution, proposed by Sir Louis Kershaw, the Indian Government delegate, stating that the Committee were unable to recommend the Conference to adopt decisions on the subject in view of the unlikelihood of any big industrial state agreeing to incur such international obligations, but recommending the Governments to study the question in order to afford the maximum protection to the health of the workers.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 28.—The International Labor Conference today completed its examination of the report of the Director after having decided to place a time restriction on the speakers. Many delegates successively made observations on the situation in their countries as regards ratification of the conventions. They paid a tribute to the efforts and work of the International Bureau. The majority of the workers' delegates presented grievances on the social position in their countries, whilst the Government delegates gave explanations.

The conference will meet in plenary session on Monday morning to begin the discussion of the committee's work, which is almost completed.

STUDEBAKER

Dependable 6-Cylinder Motor Cars

Only the best materials will do

IN Studebaker cars you will find many points where money could be saved by substituting inferior materials.

Upholstery is an example. If imitation leather were used instead of genuine leather, £5 per car could be saved.

Even in the selection of genuine leather, Studebaker requirements are strict. Flank leather is not acceptable for seat cushions. Cuttings must come from the backs of the finest hides, where the best wearing leather is obtained.

The quality of Studebaker upholstery is typical of Studebaker construction throughout. Holding the quality of its products uppermost has been a Studebaker policy for 72 years.

Beneath the genuine leather in Studebaker seat cushions is a generous portion of finest curled hair and high grade cotton batting. Long, resilient springs complete the qualities that lend unusual comfort to Studebaker cushions.

Cryptography In History And Fiction

Andre Langie's Book Recalls Edgar Allan Poe's Alleged Feats In Cipher Reading

BY ARTHUR MAURICE

Andre Langie's "Cryptography," translated from the French by J. C. H. Macbeth, who contributes a supplementary chapter on the Playfair Cipher System, has just been issued by E. P. Dutton and Company. The publishers offer the book as being, in their belief, the first work on the subject in English. From the earliest times ciphe writing has played its part in love and war and rascality. Even children have found it diverting and useful. Pen or pencil is not always required. There is mimetic cryptography. M. Langie recalls the questioned pupil in the school room at a loss for a proper name. "So we have glanced at a comrade with whom we had previously come to an understanding. And the latter passes a finger over his hair, his ear, his lips, his ear and his nose, whereby we understand 'Helen.'"

The origin of secret writing is lost in the mists of antiquity. To go back only 500 years before the Christian era the following record is found in Herodotus: "When Xerxes planned to invade Greece a Greek named Demaratus at the court of the King at Susa warned his countrymen by means of a message traced on wooden tablets covered with wax. At first nothing could be made of them, and it was Gorgo, the wife of Leonidas the king, who discovered the stratagem." The Carthaginians made use of a similar process, which seems to indicate the employment of sympathetic ink.

It was also Herodotus who recorded for posterity a not very practical system which was once employed in the East: "Histiaeus, tyrant of Susa, wishing to communicate to Aristagoras, his lieutenant at Miletus, the order to revolt, could find only one way, all the roads being guarded. He had the head of his most trustworthy servant shaved, made some incisions in the scalp and waited till the hair grew again. As soon as this occurred he sent the man to Miletus without giving him any further instruction than on his arrival to invite Aristagoras to shave his head and scrutinize it. Now the incisions formed the word 'Revolt.'"

CRYPTOGRAPHY IN LATER HISTORY

The cipher used by Julius Caesar is still in use today, though with complications that make it much harder to solve. King Alfred, the famous muffin gentleman, and Charlemagne used cryptography in communicating with their officers, and from the thirteenth century all the principal business of the Governments of Venice, Florence and other Italian republics was carried on by means of cipher writing. Cardinal Richelieu employed cryptography in his transactions, and Louis XIV. used so complicated a cipher for corresponding with his Ministers when they were absent from Versailles or when he himself was with the army that it was not until 175 years after his death that the key was discovered.

Since the Middle Ages investigators have been pondering over an ideal system of cryptography. Conspicuous among these investigators have been Francis Bacon, the philosopher, and Blaise de Vigenere, the French diplomatist, whose ingenious table is still useful today, either for coding or decoding. Nowadays every one of the great Powers has its cipher department. When the head of a State or his Minister of Foreign Affairs leaves the country he is always accompanied by a staff of cipher experts. When President Poincare made his visit to Russia just before the outbreak of the world war he had with him the director of the French cipher department, with whose collaboration he was able to keep in touch with Paris without running the risk of indiscreet confidences.

CRYPTOGRAPHY AND FICTION

M. Langie emphasizes the parts that cryptography has played in the making of fiction. He cites first of all Poe's tale "The Gold Bug," curiously miscalling it "The Gold Beetle." "Who has not read also Jules Verne's 'Jangada'? And who has failed to be interested in the researches made by the Judge Jarriquez into a Portuguese document in secret writing in order to save the life of an innocent victim condemned to death?"

There is reference also to Jules Verne's "A Journey to the Center of Earth." There we see a Danish scholar intent on piercing the mystery of a cryptographic parchment in order to penetrate into the depths of our terrestrial globe. The scholar fails, but his careless nephew solves the enigma by the simple method of reading the finals of the lines backwards. Just as easy as the cipher invented by Jules Verne for "A Journey to the Center of the Earth" was the one employed by Poe in "The Gold Bug." As is that in "Jangada" the problem is solved, thanks to an incredible combination of favorable circumstances.

EDGAR ALLAN POE ON CRYPTOGRAPHY

M. Langie recalls Poe's acknowledgment that the cipher of "The Gold Bug" was comparatively simple, and Poe's claim to have deciphered keys "ten thousand times more ardous." That claim involves one of the most illuminating and yet baffling chapters in all the literature of cipher writing. Poe asserted in the columns of a Philadelphia paper on which he was employed that no cipher could be sent to him that he would not be able to solve. It was a challenge that excited a lively interest and letters were sent to him from all parts of the country.

According to Poe in many cases the writers were not strictly scrupulous in observing the conditions of the challenge. Foreign languages were used. Words and sentences were run together without interval. Several alphabets were employed in the same cipher. Yet out of perhaps 100 ciphers received. Poe's statement was that there was but one that he did not succeed immediately solving, and that one was proved to be an imposition, a jargon of random characters having no meaning whatever.

Of course there were the skeptics who regarded Poe's alleged feat as a gigantic humbug. Some persons averred that the mysterious characters were inserted for the purpose of giving an odd look and thereby advertising the paper. Others suggested that Poe not only solved the ciphers, but put them together for solution. Who can blame the doubters? That cipher reading feat remains one of the Poe mysteries, together with the mystery of his forecasting of the plot of Dicken's "Barnaby Rudge" and the mystery of his last five days of life. There may be considerable doubt about the nature and extent of Poe's excesses. There is no dohbt that he was a monumental liar. On that point we are all Griswolds.

JAPAN PASTOR SAYS MISSIONERS SHOULD REMAIN

Prominent Christian Labels Americans Who Leave Cowards

American missionaries to Japan who drop their work and return to the United States because of the present agitation against them should be regarded as cowards according to the Rev. Makoto Kobayashi, pastor of the Ryoguku Church and one of the members of the executive committee of the National Christian Council of Japan, according to the Japan Advertiser of June 21.

Japanese Christian workers are greatly concerned about the discussion now being carried on as to the advisability of American missionaries staying in this country despite the ill feeling engendered by the passing of the immigration bill by Congress. Mr. Kobayashi told a representative of The Japan Advertiser yesterday that missionaries who run away and dodge their duty out of fear of the difficulties which may be ahead of them should be branded as cowards.

"From the Christian viewpoint," declared Mr. Kobayashi, "we must oppose utterly and absolutely the policy the Government of the United States adopted when it passed the anti-Japanese immigration legislation on a basis of race and nationality in disregard of international courtesy. The injury thus done to the amicable relations between Japan and America is incalculable, and we cannot afford to pass over the incident because of the tremendous significance it bears on the future of the world.

"It goes without saying that we Christian workers should spare no efforts to restore Japanese-American relations to their former status of mutual good-will, and the exodus of American missionaries from this country will not improve the situation in the least.

"In the first place it is very important that we impress upon the American people the gravity of the problem and its bearing upon the future. We must let them understand that "grave consequences" have already resulted from the high-handed, selfish and immoral conduct of the American politicians, and that it is not a problem which alone concerns Japanese and the United States, but has a serious bearing upon the future of international intercourse between the East and the West. We Christians of Japan must let the Christians of America know that they have a great task before them in alleviating the present strained relations between the two peoples.

"American missionaries in this country should consider the present serious situation, which was brought about by their own countrymen, as painful as though it had been their own work. In this spirit the pride of the Japanese people should be respected even more humbly and missionary work should be even more earnestly entered, thus demonstrating the true spirit of the American people to the people of Japan.

"If there are any American missionaries who are thinking of going back to America, they are merely trying to dodge the duty placed upon them, fearing probable difficulties in the way of their work among the Japanese in the future. It is hoped that the American missionaries will co-operate with other Christian workers in their country in properly interpreting the serious situation brought about by their politicians.

Gandhi Proposal Carries In India

(Reuter's Service)

Bombay, June 29.—A meeting of the All-India Congress Committee, which controls the Congress organisation, is being held at Ahmedabad to determine the position of the Swarajists. Mr. Gandhi submitted a resolution laying down that membership of the Committee should be confined to those spinning at least half an hour daily and practising quintuple boycott, including boycots of the Councils and Law Courts. Repeated efforts to arrange a compromise proved unsuccessful. The resolution was strongly opposed by Mr. Motilal Nehru who finally walked out with other Swarajists. After that the Committee by 67 votes to 37 adopted Mr. Gandhi's resolution. Mr. Gandhi then urged that the clause in the resolution stipulating that Congress officials not spinning half an hour daily should vacate office should be rescinded on the ground that it had been carried by a small majority and would have been defeated had the Swarajists voted. The Committee agreed to the proposal.

New U.S. Navy Secretary Aims At High Efficiency

Success Of Navy As Fighting Machine Depends On Personnel, Says Secretary Wilbur

Washington, May 10.—Curtis D. Wilbur, the new Secretary of the United States Navy, takes the wheel at a time when the American Navy and those of other world powers are carrying out the agreements of the Washington Conference for the reduction of armament. And they may undergo a further reduction, for there are indications that President Coolidge will call another conference to consider the subjects that the Washington conference left untouched because of opposition on the part of some signatories to the disarmament treaty.

The large problems before Secretary Wilbur, himself a graduate of the Naval Academy and a student of naval progress, are to cut down the fighting craft, increase the efficiency of the personnel and make the reduced navy as strong as that of other powers. The naval treaty negotiated in Washington removes competitive naval building, but the problem becomes more intensive, as it reduces itself to one of efficiency in personnel.

"Men fight; not ships," and the "superiority of man to his machines" are lessons of the great war that Secretary Wilbur must write upon the hearts of officers and men of the fleet. Efficiency of personnel and efficiency of machines permitted in modern naval warfare, as prescribed by the treaty, appear to be the things that will command his attention, together with economy, for the American people are demanding economy in all departments of Government, especially in the fighting end, with war believed to be in the far future.

A PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY

Friends of Secretary Wilbur say he has set himself to this task with the precision of a man trained in the navy and educated in the law as a member of both bench and bar. He is the first Secretary of the Navy in recent years who might be called a professional. Heretofore it has been the custom to select civilians to head the Navy and War Departments, the feeling being that a man in the service might stir up a factional struggle in the navy and see things entirely from the viewpoint of the services, without regard to the sentiment of the tax payer.

Secretary Wilbur has not been long enough out of the service to forget the essentials of his technical training, and he has been long enough in public life to know the mind of the taxpayer. In other words, his friends say he is evenly balanced and fitted, as most of his predecessors have not been, to know exactly what he is talking about as a technical man, and yet to be conversant with the public viewpoint.

One of the minor questions facing Secretary Wilbur is a reduction of the number of officers, which Congress has not yet seen fit to bring about, in order to balance the navy and to bring it into conformity with the treaty provisions. Washington observers say that the Navy Department today is overloaded with officers and that the navy is top-heavy with Admirals, many of them resting in swivel chairs in Washington. The fleet, critics in Congress assert, is suffering from centralisation of authority in Washington. Commanding officers, it is asserted by these critics are constantly undergoing curtailment of their authority by bureaucratic interference of junior officers anchored at desks in the department; also that too many desk Admirals have been promoted to commands afloat via a desk in the department. It is further asserted that "the seat next the dealer" (as Admiral Sims warned the nation some time ago) has proved in recent months to be the gateway to an advantageous billet afloat. Another criticism is that between the department and the fleet there is not the close sympathy and understanding and singleness of purpose which the navy in other days has known.

EXPECT CHANGES

These critics contend that decentralisation of authority is necessary. They assert that there should be greater emphasis on sea duty, more thorough training for high commands and consultation with ship commanders concerning the selection of flag officers. All these changes must be made in due time by the new Secretary, they declare.

Another reform suggested to Secretary Wilbur is a reduction of the tour of duty of every bureau chief from four years to two. Such a reduction, it is asserted, would have a wholesome effect on the health of the fleet, a helpful effect on departmental administration, and a far-reaching effect on the navy's relations with Congress and the country.

Secretary Wilbur has not been disturbed by reforms suggested to him by so-called "experts." He appears to know the target he is aiming at, and, it is reported, is getting ready to do the essential things. His first important action was to appoint a commission to study the naval oil reserves and devise a plan to preserve oil set aside for the navy, under ground, or in storage. This commission intends to determine the quantity of oil held in reserve for the navy and to recommend a comprehensive plan to conserve it by preventing offset drilling near the reserves. Where such drilling has been done legally, the commission will try to compel private concerns to share the oil so drilled, under penalty of retaliatory drilling. A definite policy to reserve the oil in the ground, or collect it in tanks, is apparently necessary as the result of the oil lease scandal, for the leases may be revoked after litigation and the oil lands returned to the Government.

Secretary Wilbur has refrained thus far from outlining any extensive policy. It is understood that he will work out his policy as he moves along, laying down the general rule that the underlying thought shall be efficiency in personnel and material and economy in every direction.

AIMS AT EFFICIENCY

"I want to maintain not only an efficient personnel, but equally high-class material in service," he said to a representative of The New York Times. "Further, I intend to co-operate in every possible way with other departments, with a view to effecting economics. For instance, I shall co-operate with the Department of Commerce in surveys, radio, and the maintenance of lighthouses, with the Department of War in the manufacture of guns and gun parts. I shall abide by the present regulations for transfer of material between the different departments. In every way possible I shall further these exchanges of material so that savings already made may be increased and a proper business system maintained in Government."

"Do you favor the consolidation of the army and navy air services, as proposed since the war?" Secretary Wilbur was asked.

"At present I am opposed to consolidation," he said. "I favor separate air services because I do not believe that men could be property trained unless they received the training deemed necessary by the officers of the army and navy. Such a consolidation might lead to the impairment of one service or the other. But money can be saved by consolidating the physical side of this service and wherever possible I think the repair shops and hangars should be used in common by the army and navy, rather than to have duplicate units. There should be co-operation in material and much economy lies in the development of exchange of parts. For instance, only recently the navy turned over nineteen destroyers to the Coast Guard, thus saving the expense of building new vessels for the Coast Guard. We also intend to transfer many sixteen-inch guns to the army.

STUDYING OIL RESERVES

"The only fundamental policy I have originated," added the Secretary, "was the appointment of a commission of experts and business men to study the navy oil reserves. I believe that this commission may find it necessary to recommend the drilling of offset wells in order to stop private concerns from depleting the oil in naval reserves. In my opinion, this will be absolutely necessary unless we can induce the private concerns, now tapping oil reserves with wells adjoining naval reserves, to divide their supply, which, in many cases, is being pumped from sources underneath the naval reserves. Of course, we cannot force owners of so-called offset wells to enter into an agreement to give the Government a certain percentage of the oil drawn from the vein in the naval reserves. The only practical remedy, in that case, is for the Government to begin drilling offset wells in an extensive way."

"There appears to be a dispute between the State Department and the Navy Department over your proposal to convert old craft from steam to oil burners," the Secretary was told.

"There is no justification for such a conclusion," he replied. "This department is co-operating with the State Department and will do nothing which seems to interfere with the spirit or the letter of the Washington treaties. If it is held that the installation of oil burners would violate the spirit of the naval treaty, nothing will be done in that direction which might embarrass our international relations."

FAVORS ANOTHER PARLEY

"Is there any immediate move in contemplation further to limit armament?"

"I favor at the proper time another conference to further limit the armament of auxiliary ships, but of course the President must decide when the matter should be suggested to the nations which assembled at the Washington conference.

"The success of the navy depends today more on efficiency of men and materiel than at any other time in history," Secretary Wilbur concluded. "I shall endeavor to bring this about, for we can no longer depend for our protection on our strength or new inventions. All nations have agreed to use certain types of fighting craft and superiority can come only through efficiency and in extreme preparedness. The success of our Republic is due in large part to the preparedness and efficiency and successful operation of its naval force. The navy is the strong arm of the Government.

"No nation has the right to build a navy for national boasting and glory. The navy exists only for the purpose of national defense and to force the execution of our national policies and our rights among the nations. Efficiency must be the aim of the American Navy today; competitive building programs which produced greater units and more powerful machinery passed away with the Washington conference and the world made an important step toward peace by making war difficult under modern conditions."

Secretary Wilbur, who was serving as Chief Justice of California when President Coolidge called him to Washington, is the tallest member of the Cabinet. Attorney General Stone, the other new member, is the heaviest. Secretary Wilbur stands 6 feet 3. His manner is that of a cultivated man of the world, humanised by contact with men in the open, and it is predicted that he will make many friends in Washington.

SOVIET RUSSIA NOW FACTOR IN CHINA'S SUGAR MART

Is Preparing For Entry Into East Asiatic Field

IMPORTS GROW

First Quarter's Figures Double Those For 1923

The rapidly increasing use of sugar by the Chinese is attracting the attention of various sugar-producing countries. Soviet Russia, which appears to have its sugar industry in fair condition, is preparing to enter the China field, according to recent reports. Russian sugar agents have appeared in western China and Mongolia and are expected to penetrate as far as Shanghai in the course of a comparatively short time.

The refined sugar imported into Shanghai during the first three months of the present year was 360,805 piculs, more than double the amount for the corresponding period of one year ago. Brown sugar brought in in January-March of this year amounted to 12,931 piculs, an increase of over 700 percent over the corresponding period of 1923.

Until the organisation of the Chung Hus Kuo Ming (Chinese National) Sugar Refining Co., Ltd., two years ago in Shanghai, and the Pu I Sugar Refining Co. at Tainan in 1921, each company with a capital of $5,000,000, practically all of the sugar used in Central China was supplied by foreign companies, particularly the two British concerns in Hongkong, the China Sugar Refining Company, Ltd., and the Taikoo Sugar Refining Co., Ltd.

JAPANESE BUILDING

Japanese interests are at the present time building a large sugar refinery in Shanghai. For some time the Japanese have been active in the sugar market of China. The sugar, confections and sweetmeats exported by Japan in 1922 were valued at Y.20,509,823, an increase from Y.15,515,475 in 1913. The interest in foreign sugar markets is maintained in Japan, in spite of the fact that the country does not make enough of the commodity to supply the home market, and to import sugar, confections and sweetmeats in 1922 to the value of Y.54,818,188.

The invasion of the Russians is the newest development of the sugar market in China. It is reported that the Soviet Sugar Trust is producing and selling sugar in quite a normal fashion, and that there has been an appreciable decline in the cost of production.

The production program of the Soviet Sugar Trust for the working year of 1924-25 is reported to be as follows: The area to be sown 195,000 dessiatines, which is calculated to produce 15,554,650 berkovetz of beetroot, of which 12,015,100 dessiatines are in the Ukraine, and 2,539,550 in the rest of Russia (1 dessiatine equals 2.7 acres; 1 berkovetz, 361 pounds). It is expected that the yield will be 62 funts (1 funt equals 8/10 lb.) of sugar per dessiatine in the Urkraine, and 60 funts per dessiatine in the rest of Russia; which means a total estimated yield of 23,982,530 poods (1 ppod equals 36 pounds) for the area referred to.

NEW SOVIET FACTORIES

It is planned to establish 100 additional factories to handle this quantity. According to financial estimates, it is calculated that the year's production will cost 141,732,000 rubles from which a profit 8,000,000 rubles is anticipated.

There is a strong sentiment prevailing in Russian sugar circles in favor of exporting sugar to Persia, Afghanistan, Turkey and China, for which countries unlimited export permits have been asked. The People's Foreign Trade Committee at first was opposed to the export program but is said now to be getting in line with the popular sentiment.

A report from Kieff says that the sugar campaign has closed with brilliant results. Out of twenty-five sugar factories which were at work on the right bank, 2,000,000 poods of sugar were obtained against 4,800,000 in the preceding campaign, and 880,000 poods in 1921. Beetroots were sown on 88,500 dessiatines in 1923, and the average harvest amounted to 64.5 berkovetz per dessiatine against 57 berkovetz in the 1922 working year. The productivity relative to labor employed reached the prewar level. Extensive repairs have been made in the factories during the year, and in many of them the steam power has been increased.

New York Is Gradually Taking Dominance Of The World's Silver Market

Transactions By Americans With European Governments Are First Move For World Control

New York, May 26.—That New York is in a fair way to take the dominance of the world's silver market away from London is the view expressed by silver experts in this country. Reports that New York is in such an ascendancy were first received in press cable dispatches from the Continent last week, the condition being described as another phase of the battle in which the dollar is crowding the pound sterling out of its centuries old position in world trade and finance.

The financial district, so long accustomed as it was to looking to London for silver metal quotations, at first viewed the cable dispatches somewhat skeptically. In local silver metal circles, however, many details were quickly given, supporting the view that America is to take dominance in the silver markets of the world.

To understand the reasons for the changes, it is well to consider how London has remained the market center for so long. India and China have long been the world's greatest consumers of silver. The three leading bullion dealers of London have been able, ever since the British Empire took over India several score years ago, to control the market for silver by reason of being the purchasing agents for the Indian Government, as well as the main purchasing agents for silver buyers in China. The position of dominance with regard to China has existed since Great Britain gained control of Hongkong and Chinese customs receipts.

India was the world's greatest buyer of silver because of hoarding of that metal by the natives, and because of the extent to which the metal is used in that country for decorative purposes—for bracelets, rings, etc. China has been a heavy consumer of silver due to the fact that the coinage of the country is silver, and because of the fact that silver is used as the medium of exchange in that country's extensive caravan trade with Persia and Russia.

The production end of the silver industry developed in the early 80's along lines favorable to the silver metal dealers of London when America's great output had been coming from the mines of the famous Comstock district of Nevada. With the Comstock boom on the wane, Great Britain found itself in strong position in the production end of the silver industry because of the extensive silver output in Australia and in Mexico, where some of the largest mines were controlled by British capital.

THE MONTANA OUTPUT

Among the many developments which are now tending to weaken the position of the London silver metal dealers, is the fact that the Australian output over the past 15 years has been unimportant, while at the same time American capital has been gradually increasing the influence in silver mining in Mexico. Added to that, there have been the tremendous changes of the past several years in the copper industry in this country.

The big developments, so far as the copper industry is concerned, came about 12 years ago, when great lode properties of the Butte mining district in Montana were consolidated into the present Anaconda organisation. Those mines turned out a tremendous amount of silver as a by-product and, because of the output of companies like Anaconda, the Magma, the Kennecott, and the Cerro de Pasco, with their properties either in the United States or controlled by American interests, the United States is today the largest producer of silver in the world.

Despite the fact that the amount of silver produced or controlled by America dwarfs that of any other country, the three big bullion dealers of London have been attempting to continue their control of the world's silver markets. As the story regarding them is generally popularly told, "every morning three men in London arbitrarily fix the price of silver for the world." This continued dominance has been resented in the American silver trade.

AMERICA AS A CONSUMER

The increasing tendency to breakaway from the London dominance has been encouraged by the extent to which the United States is coming forward as a consumer of silver. For one thing the demand for sterling silver in America for ornamental purposes is growing tremendously, while at the same time such demand is declining in Europe. As an example, American people of wealth are turning more and more to the use of solid silver on their tables, while people in Europe are selling their solid silver ware and are using electro-plated and silver-plated ware. Another huge demand for silver in this country is from the motion picture industry. Inasmuch as the silver which is used in the making of motion picture films is non-recoverable, the demand on the metal from the motion picture industry call for a continued output from the mines.

Because of these conditions and various other conditions, the grip of the London dealers on the silver metal markets of the world has been loosening much in recent years. Before the war New York hardly figured as a market for the metal. The market here was virtually a nominal affair quoted by London. Now, however, a real New York market is developing—in other words, there are two markets for silver, one in London and one in New York.

SEVERAL MARKET DURING WAR

During the war, the various conditions then existing meant that there were several real markets for the metal. There was a market in London, a market in New York, a market in Denver and one in San Francisco. The market in San Francisco for some time was a tremendously big affair.

One of the several conditions which has tended to lessen the grip of the London bullion dealers has been the fact that the Nipissing Mines Co., Ltd., the big Canadian producer in which Americans are so heavily interested, found it advantageous to deal direct with China in selling silver to that country rather than to make the deals through London. That condition was due partly to the fact that the metal could be shipped more safely in the direct dealing, and also because that form of dealing was more economical. For the latter reason the Nipissing has continued to do its business direct with China. That means so much less metal for the London silver dealers to handle, and naturally, just so much less influence for them in their efforts to retain control of the world markets.

PRODUCTION IN BURMA

The main silver production which remains under control of London capital is in Burma and in Mexico. Several of the most important properties in Burma were brought under one British management shortly before the outbreak of the World War and are operated by the Burma Corporation. They include the famous mines which were worked by the Chinese more than 500 years ago. In Mexico, London capitalist control some of the most important mines, including the famous Santa Gertrudis property.

American interests, producing silver or controlling silver output, in resenting the London dominance of the world's silver markets, have been attempting to break into the great markets of India and China which are the strongholds of the London dealers. The cable dispatches received from the Continent last week stated that two of the largest American interests, the Amedican Smelting an Refining Co. and the United States Smelting Refining Co., have just concluded direct long term contracts on supplies of silver with the Governments of Germany, Austria, Sweden, Norway and Italy and are negotiating direct contracts with other governments. Heretofore all such deals have gone through London.

AN INITIAL WEDGE

This step by the American interests is looked upon in silver metal circles here as representing an effort at an initial wedge into the world's silver markets by Americans, preliminary to similar efforts in the great consuming territories in Asia. The contracts thus far effected have a clause which provides that they are void in the event that the Dawes plan of reparations is not accepted. Approximately 100,000,000 ounces of American silver are contracted for.

Silver metal interests here see little likelihood of the London dealers losing ground to Americans in India. Also, it is contended, the British dealers have to their benefit with regard to China the established relations of the Burma mines with the Chinese markets. However, the growth of American trade with China gives promise of tremendously big opportunities in that country for American silver producers.

AUSTRIA EXPECTS END OF CONTROL BY THE LEAGUE

Foreign Minister Is Optimistic On Eve Of His Trip To Geneva

Vienna, May 28.—The question of Austria's reconstruction and whether her budget is permanently balanced, which is coming up before the League Council in June, is monopolising the Austrian Government to the exclusion of all else. Chancellor Seipel, the Foreign Minister, Dr. Grunberger, Finance Minister Kienbock, as also Commissioner General Zimmerman, will proceed to Geneva, which is only one indication of the importance attached to the decision to be taken by the Council.

Foreign Minister Grunberger speaking of the report which the Government will present on this occasion said:

"It is a great mistake and quite erroneous to believe what has been published in certain papers, that the Austrian Government has the idea of going to Geneva and asking the League to end control before the end of the year.

"In the year 1922 the League financial committee then in Vienna mapped out a sort of budget for future years and was of the opinion that in 1924 when, in conformity with the Geneva protocols, control should end, a balanced budget would be arrived at at 350,000,000 gold crowns. The manner, however, in which Austria has developed in the last two years has clearly shown that the plan fixed in 1922 by the financial committee has been far surpassed. The whole situation has improved much quicker than they thought possible in 1922, especially as regards the enormous increase in revenue.

"That was why I asked at the Geneva meeting in March to have the figures re-examined because I considered, with the enormous increase in revenue, it would be quite unreasonable to balance the budget at such a low level. In last March the League, moreover, agreed to re-examine these figures at the coming session of the League Council.

"The Austrian Government is going to present the so-called 'normal budget,' showing the future revenue compared with the necessary expenditure and intends to ask the League to agree that, providing the budget remains within these limits, the League will pronounce that at the end of 1924 the equilibrium in the Austrian budget has been reached on a new level."

Dr. Grunberger then proceeded to point out that the Government was now preparing to convince the League that the budget really was permanently balanced, although on a much higher level than originally planned.

"I would, however, like to lay particular stress on this point, namely, that the Austrian Government has decided to make every possible effort to continue its policy of economy and reform," he added, "because there is no question that an equilibrium can only be reached if we undertake to make very great restrictions in cost of administration, &c.

"At present the main Parliamentary committee is working hard on the socalled normal budget which will be under discussion until the first days of June, when the final figures will be agreed upon as regards revenue and expenditure."

Asked what the difference was between the Government's and the Commissioners General's figures for the normal budget, the Minister replied that the Commissioner had already studied the Government's figures of the future budget and had arrived at certain figures himself.

"They don't quite correspond with the Government's figures," he said, "but as the difference is not great a compromise will probably be reached. Dr. Zimmerman agrees that the development has been so good that there is no necessity to fall back upon the League's figures fixed in 1922."

In reply to a question on the subject so vital for Austria, of the use of the remainder of the international credit which has caused so much discussion and dissension between the Government and Zimmerman, the Minister stated that the question of what would be done with the remainder of the credit could certainly only be decided after the normal budget had been passed and approved by the league, when the Government would probably ask to invest a part of this remaining credit in State improvements. As soon as the budget is permanently balanced this question will be raised, but until that time there can be no question of using the money as it is primarily there to meet an emergency in the eventuality the budget were not balanced.

The Minister then spoke of the resignation of the Economic Commissioner, Dr. Hornik, which he thought had been misinterpreted. Dr. Hornik resigned because the Government came to the conclusion that his task was accomplished, but people thought that the Government did not wish to continue its policy of economy and especially dismissal of State officials.

Minister Grunberger stated that the Government and Commissioner General would at present make separate reports to the League Council, and he appeared quite optimistic that international control would end with the end of the year, in other words that the league would pronounce Austria's budget permanently balanced and would also accede to the Government's request as to the use of the international credit.

"Elephant Brand" Portland Cement

The World's best cement is obtained from that world-famous factory, the Holderbank Factory in Switzerland. The "Elephant Brand" cement, according to expert opinion, is equal to, if not actually excels, the Holderbank output—in compression, tensile and other tests.
Both the Shanghai Municipal Council and Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francais are now using the "Elephant Brand" cement exclusively for all their requirements. Copies of Certificates issued by the Shanghai Municipal Council may be obtained from this Company on application

The Controversy Over The Boxer Indemnity

WHEN the news first reached China that Congress had voted to remit to China the remainder of the American share of the Boxer Indemnity amounting to G.$6,137,552.90, one of the leading Chinese newspapers in Shanghai, in referring to possible uses to which the money might be devoted, said, "This is a matter which the Chinese people should decide for themselves."

At that time it was not known that Congress, in passing the resolution, had inserted a clause in the text of the bill directing that the money should be used "further to develop the educational and other cultural activities of China." Since this clause appears only in the preamble of the resolution, it is thought by some to have no legal or binding effect upon the President's final decision in respect to the expenditure of the money, but regardless of this it will, without question, have a strong influence upon his actions in this regard.

Since Congress did see fit to restrict the use of the money for educational and cultural purposes, a considerable number of Chinese are now giving this question serious consideration and thus far three well-defined ideas seem to have developed. General Wu Pei-fu seems to have been first in the field with a liberal interpretation of the words "educational and cultural" to include the construction of railways. His idea is quite novel. "Use the money to complete the Hankow-Szechuen and the Hankow-Canton Railways first and then use the proceeds of the railways for educational purposes afterwards." Since the balance of the American share of the Indemnity only amounts to a little more than six million dollars gold, General Wu apparently intends to include the British share of the Indemnity as well in his railroad-educational plans, for, according to latest reports, the British Parliament also inserted an educational restriction clause, when the bill was passed.

The next suggestion (referring to the American portion of the Indemnity) is that the money should be used for developing, either independently or in connection with the leading Chinese Government universities, departments of science and scientific research. Definite proposals to this end have been made to both the Chinese and American Governments by the Chinese Universities and by the seven leading institutions of scientific study and research in China.

The third idea which has the support of the administration of Tsing Hua College in Peking and also, according to report, of several members of the Foreign Office in Peking, is that the money should be used for developing Tsing Hua College into a complete university. Tsing Hua College was established in 1908 with the first remission of the American portion of the Indemnity (G. $11,961,121.76) for the purpose of preparing Chinese young men for entrance to American colleges and universities, and for arranging for their support while in America attending school.

The above are the three main ideas which have developed, and as yet it is impossible to determine which will prevail to the extent of a definite proposal from the Chinese Government to the President of the United States. Although nothing is known regarding the intentions of President Coolidge, it is thought that he will make no move until he has received a definite proposal from the Chinese Government giving its plans for a use of the money. This was the process followed in 1908 in respect to the first remission of a portion of the American share of the Indemnity and undoubtedly the same will be followed with the final balance. Several other plans have been suggested, such, for instance, as one from Dr. C. T. Wang that the "educational" use of the money should be linked up in some way with a road-building program and another from an industrial leader suggesting the use of the money for the rejuvenation of the cotton manufacturing and growing industry. One man, a newspaper editor, possibly having in mind the controversy which is likely to develop among the advocates of the different schemes, recommends that President Coolidge should send to China a commission of three distinguished men who would spend a year in China interviewing Chinese leaders and investigating the various schemes. Then, after completing its work, this Commission would report to the President and he would base his decision thereon.

The suggestion of some of the American organisations in China to the effect that a joint commission of Chinese and Americans be appointed for the purpose of supervising the expenditure of the money has received favorable comment from numerous Chinese educational leaders. Dr. P. W. Quo, president of the National Southeastern University at Nanking was the first to make this proposal and others have since voiced similar ideas, most of them favoring a joint Chinese-American committee of educators, with the possible addition of one or two business men to advise from the standpoint of possible investment of endowment funds.

Regardless of the use to which the money is finally put, the serious consideration which is now being given to the subject is all to the good. The educational leaders are now alive to the possibilities and there is not much chance now of any of the money getting into the hands of the military factions—which, incidentally, was the principal reason which inspired Congress to restrict the use of the money to educational and other cultural activities of China.

A Canton Phenomenon

CANTON is a city of such sinister significance and prim associations that one does not customarily identify Dr. Sun's stronghold with wit or humor. Thus when the South China Morning Post of Hongkong waxes sarcastic over the latest enterprise to establish a newspaper at Canton published in the English language, this pleasant relief from the usual run of events in the capital of Kwangtung province is to be all the more readily welcomed. Most Hongkong people have by this time heard about "The Canton Phenomenon," but for the delectation of Shanghai residents in these dog days, it would not be amiss to quote from our Hongkong contemporary on the subject. At first it was thought to be a piece of Chinese propaganda in connection with the recent Shameen outrage, but now it turns out to be a perfectly genuine effort to establish a newspaper printed in English. If the "Phenomenon" succeed in achieving but half its promises, it will not belie its name, and one will await with breathless expectancy its first publication.

Apparently the bulletins issued broadcast in Hongkong were intended as a little advertising stunt and we have it on the authority of the second "Phenomenon" that its first sheet giving news of the Shameen affair was on the street only three minutes after the outrage happened. Quite a notable achievement for an organization not yet in existence, and when it fairly gets going we shall doubtless see this prospective contemporary creating a few time records. All the "Phenomenon" asks is that "the value of our paper may be judged thereby"—by the two expresses already issued; and we have no doubt it will, facetiously remarks the Hongkong scribe. The "Phenomenon" will not lack local news, for it is employing no fewer than ten special correspondents to cover Canton and promises its subscribers and advertisers that "wherever there arise any extraordinary things, we would at once despatch our special correspondents to the spot to make thorough enquiries." But that is not all—not nearly. It will have a fine foreign news service, and, to use the "Phenomenon's" own language, this is what it is going to be: "We will also receive informations from Europe and America and have special correspondents staying in Peking, Mukden, Shanghai and Hankow and all other provinces where they would send in every news relating the respective local news, especially the politics, diplomacy, education and social conditions in Peking and the provinces as well as agricultural, industrial, commercial and other things in the latter places. The politics, diplomacy, education and social conditions, political parties' movements, education, laboring bodies' tensions, commercial and all other things of Canton are being mostly attended to, with a view to giving full informations of Chinese affairs to the foreigners here and abroad." We are not told the price, but the "first edition will be out within a month."

From all we have read about it, it should surely be some phenomenal "Phenomenon," concludes the South China Morning Post. And we might add that the continued toleration of Dr. Sun Yat-sen by the oppressed and overtaxed populace of Kwangtung province is such a singular phenomenon that the proposed publication perhaps is intended to direct the attention of the outside world to this and other equally curious phenomena. China is becoming a country full of such odd phenomena.

The Appreciation Of Old Age

There are many things that China can teach the West.

A race could hardly go on for two thousand years without learning something.

And one of the most notable things in China, to the Western observer, is the universal esteem of old age.

One of the commonest things we find in Europe and America is the dread of old age. Women fear to grow old and make even the most grotesque efforts to keep up the appearance of youth when youth itself is past.

In literature there is considerable evidence of what is called the "revolt of youth." The conviction seems to be widespread that old men have too much influence and authority, they have hung on too long and ought to be shoved aside for the general good.

Much was made some years ago of the alleged statement of a prominent physician and scientist that men ought to be chloroformed at forty.

All this is probably a phase of crass materialism. What underlies it is an exaggerated notion of the physical pleasures and the impatience with, perhaps a contempt of, the delights of the grown mind and spirit.

Man, of course, is an animal, but he is also something more. The best part of a man consists of those powers and functions which a bodiless ghost might have.

It will hardly be doubted that such things as the pursuit of knowledge, the appreciation of beauty and all manner of tastes, of imagination, of conscience and of contemplation are worthier and more permanent than any kind of bodily pleasure.

In the earlier part of a man's life the physical forces are too clamorous for the development of the faculties of the spirit. There is too much passion and appetite, too much of the appeal of sheer physical exercise.

Man begins life as a little beast; normally he should end life as a great spirit.

With the right kind of growth the bodily demands gradually weaken and fall away, and the pure spirit unfolds as a ripe and delightful fruit.

The years after fifty should be the best part of one's life. Then the mind escapes more and more from its bodily prison, and the man begins to taste more keenly those joys to which he was destined.

The Chinese view seems to be the most rational; that the world was made for old people, and that the chief aim of youth should be to prepare for a satisfactory old age.

This does not imply conservatism, orthodoxy, reactionism or any other sort of inertia. As a matter of fact, the greatest heretics, idealists and revolutionists are men over fifty.

It is the youth that keep up institutions, it is young people who join lodges and are the life blood of our churches.

It is a very common mistake to believe that youth is revolutionary and radical. The truth is rather that youth likes to keep step, join armies and to reverence the past.

Youth is still swathed in many bands; old age is freedom.

Of course, this implies that a man has steadily grown and struggled; for there are many old men who are simply young men who have got tired and quit. But, if the mind has had vigor enough to push through the jungles of youth and come out into the clear spaces of maturity, it comes to a realisation of the value and beauty of ideals and of the usefulness of compromise.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

HALF-SCIENCE

There is a kind of bastard science which is very dangerous. It gets a glimpse of the great law of "The Survival of the Fittest." It explains so many things. And the apprentice mind in its enthusiasm imagines it explains everything.

It does not. The Survival of the Fittest, the Struggle for Existence, and the whole law that the physically weak are exterminated and the physically strong survive, all this is true only up to a certain point.

It is true of tigers and tomcats; it is not true of human beings.

When Man appeared, in the history of evolution, he brought another element into the arena, the Moral element.

Not to reckon with this Moral power is not to be a scientist, but a half-scientist.

The saying that "God is on the side of the strongest battalions," is a sample of this half-reasoning.

God is on the side of truth, honor, humaneness, and love; and in the end these gentle powers shall overcome. That is what Jesus meant when He said that "the meek shall inherit the earth." And that is what the half-baked mind sneers at, neither indeed can believe.

But just the same, Civilization means the superiority of the Moral forces and the eventual subjugation of all Brute force.

The present war is a struggle between the Moral and the Brute ideas.

Civilization is not a working out of materialistic laws; it is the mastery and direction of those laws by a spiritual, non-material something called Man.

Food And Health

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist

WHAT IS FOOD?

Ask the small boy what he means by the term "Food" and he will reply joyously, "Gee! It means eats!" Ask the housewife and she will wrinkle anxious brows and murmur: "Three meals a day!" Ask the scientist and you will hear: "Food is that substance which, when taken into the body, is capable of building tissue and sustaining energy."

But the average citizen, the man of woman who, not having spare time for study of dietetics, yet wishes eagerly to eat the right food, so as to insure a life of happy efficiency, what should the term mean to such a person?

At least 300 years before the beginning of the Christian era, back in the days of wise old Hippocratus, men were studying this very question. Scholars taught that there was a "Universal nutrient substance," to quote Dr. Lafayette Mendel of Yale University, and they also taught that this substance entered the digestive system and was there acted upon. No faintest conception of the intricacies of physiological chemistry as scholars of today know them, but the amazing fact is that this idea prevailed, with only minor variations, until the year 1813.

Authors of that day described in detail their various theories about this universal substance, but it was not until Magendie, a great French scientist born in 1783, that clearly expressed statements were enunciated in regard to the three chief divisions of foodstuffs, the proteins, starches and fats.

From that day forward scientists entered the field—the great Germans, Voit, Liebig and others, French scholars, also, and then came our own Atwater, the first American to join the group.

About a quarter of a century ago the value of popular study of nutrition was emphasized and then began the teaching of these facts in classes and groups. The young women who were members of the first classes in nutrition had a difficult time in persuading their friends and their families that they were to be taken seriously. Grandmothers and even mothers sniffed loudly, saying: "We cooked and served food years before these youngsters were born, and here they are trying to teach us!"

No doubt many ill-prepared teachers went forth and much superficial work was done, but the fact remains that to these pioneers in the teaching of foods and food values belongs the credit of making possible the present growing interest in foods.

Today we are not satisfied to theorize; we must know what food is, and what it should do for our bodies. If it fails to perform this function we must know why and must know also what to do about it!

What then, is food?

Graham Lusk likes to quote a definition of Voit's and this is it: "The ideal food is a palatable mixture of foodstuffs arranged together in such proportion as to burden the organism with a minimum of labor."

Does not that put the whole thing in a nutshell? Does it not imply first, making good the waste of energy and muscle brought about by our daily living; second, storing up material for future demands and then, in the simple words of the great scientist, does it not quietly take for granted that the mixture must be palatable, that it must not overtax the liver, kidneys and other organs? Does it not give the housewife a new vision of "three meals a day" to realise that she is helping provide "a palatable mixture" and that she is also helping to ward off innumerable diseases?

Something To Think About

By Bruno Lessing

READING

It looks as if we were in for an actors' strike. In that event many theaters will be closed. The public will miss the uplifting and edifying effects of the drama as she is drammed these days—"Going Up," "She Lost Her Garter," "Piccadilly Rose" "Levy's Lonesome Love" and similar plays.

In order to kill time (so many people have attempted to kill time and time is not yet dead) it may be necessary to stay home and read. It's a dreadful prospect. Of course newspapers are all right. You merely have to skim the headlines and only read, in detail, the stories of murder and scandal and mud-raking. But to read a book—serious book—holy mackerel!

If the worst comes to the worst, however, and you've simply got to read, in order to kill time, here may be some consolation. It was written more than a quarter of a century ago by W. E. H. Lecky.

"The taste for reading is illimitable in the vistas of pleasure it opens; it is one of the most easily satisfied, one of the cheapest, one of the least dependent on age, seasons, and the varying conditions of life.

"It cheers the invalid through years of weakness and confinement; illuminates the dreary hours of sleepless night; stores the mind with pleasant thoughts, banishes ennui, fills up the unoccupied interstices and enforced leisure of an active life; makes men for a time at least forget their anxieties and sorrows, and if it is judiciously managed, it is one of the most powerful means of training character and disciplining and elevating thought.

"It is eminently a pleasure which is not only good in itself but enhances many others. By extending the range of our knowledge, by enlarging our powers of sympathy and appreciation, it adds incalculably to the pleasures of society, to the pleasures of travel, to the pleasures of art, to the interest we take in the vast variety of events which form the great world-drama around us."

So, if you get stuck and find that, through theaters being closed you are cultivating a taste for reading, it may not be so terribly bad.

As a matter of fact, if every citizen of the United States took a course of good reading for a couple of years, you would find that when the theaters resumed business they would produce better plays. Many plays on the stage today make a direct appeal only to those "what ain't got no home and don't know nothin'."

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

It is an old fad newly revised to write mottoes on our clothes

Don't imagine for a moment that there is anything really new or novel in this so called "new fad" of having mottoes or messages written on your clothes. When a French dressmaker sends out a frock of banana color on which is embroidered the English words "Yes, we have no bananas," French women think he has done something very original and clever and "tres Americain." But it was an old trick five hundred years ago!

"Bien et Loyaulment," is a motto mentioned by Chaucer as worked on the facings and borders of an English lady's dress, and sometimes the kirtles of ladies at that time were literally covered over with such writings. It is not the fashion of the present age to express such noble sentiments as we feel. We may be none the less noble than the women of Chaucer's time but we don't like to have these highflown sentiments outlined or featherstitched on our neck scarfs or sleeves. Instead we choose something entirely flippant, something supposedly amusing.

Of course the trick hasn't gone very far in this country. French women originated—or revived—the fad a season ago and now when we do choose to wear written messages or mottoes on our frocks they are written in French. It is much the same idea as having mottoes on our family coat of arms written in Latin or Norman French—something that isn't too easy for every one to decipher.

The sketch shows a little blouse of French origin. It is of white lawn finely tucked and trimmed with soft blue kid. The French motto and figure are embroidered on the tie ends—"Je vous aime, mon petit"—I like you, little one White blouse finely tucked and trimmed with soft blue tie ends. Blue straw sailor with wide white ribbon band.

—flat enough in the English equivalent.

With this blouse is worn a blue sailor with a wide white ribbon band of the sort that is rapidly gaining favor with the really well-dressed women in America.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

BREAD CRUSTS AND CURLS

Yes, they really did use to tell little girls that if they ate the crusts of bread they would have curly hair—and curly hair, of course, had many advantages, chief of which was that then you never had to have your hair done up on curling papers or kids.

Eventually, of course, you found out that there was nothing to this bread-crust myth. You had eaten bread crusts for four or five years and your hair was still as straight as an Indian's. Then it dawned upon you that it had been quite all right. Your mother or the nurse or governess who told you wanted to have the crusts eaten. At least there was reason in her statement, even if it wasn't quite truthful.

Then you were told that if you drank coffee you would have muddy skin, and that if you sat up late at night your eyes would be dull, likewise that if you didn't eat candy that you would have nice teeth—all of which teachings turned out to have very little more conformity to the fact than the bread-crust tradition.

Much the same sort of teaching is that old standby of prudent mothers who tell their daughters that the aggressive girl who meets a man half way or more than half way never, never as any admirers, and that men may flirt with girls who bob their hair and use a lipstick, but that they never, never marry them.

There are, no doubt, advantages in eating crusts, in avoiding excess in drinking coffee and in eating candy, in keeping moderately early hours, in being pursued rather than in pursuing, and in avoiding obvious make-up—but they are not always the advantages that the over-prudent parents and moralists would have us believe them to be.

Two Ogling Planets

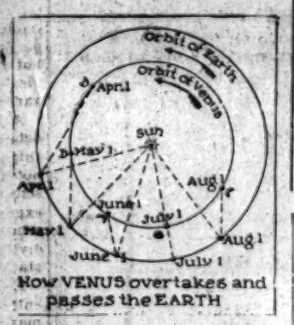
BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

By the evidence of my letters, there are still many people who do not know Venus when they see her. On the other hand, those who do know her can find no words to describe their enthusiastic admiration of her beauty. The other night, I am told, a large company, assembled on a commanding elevation, admired and talked about her for an hour, while she lolled like of queen of Egypt in her barge of burnished gold, afloat in the sunset.

I don't think it is lack of imagination that causes indifference to the stars. Almost everybody possesses the Aladdin's lamp of imagination, but it will not burn without oil, and the oil is supplied by a little knowledge of what these lights in the heavens signify.

A world as large as ours, floating before our eyes in the ether of space, upborne and driven on by balanced forces, glowing like a polished ball in the sunshine, many millions of miles away—that is what you see when you look at Venus in her role of Evening Star.

She may be inhabited—why not? Her inhabitants may be looking at our world as we look at their's—why not? The Earth may be the object of as much admiration and speculation on Venus as Venus is on the Earth. How can two such splendid sisters but be filled with curiosity about each other?



How VENUS overtakes and passes the EARTH

Look at our diagram showing the changing places of these two neighbor worlds with regard to one another and with regard to the sun. The dotted lines how the directions of Venus and the sun as seen from the earth at the given dates.

As seen with the telescope, Venus imitates the phases of the moon, and a little figure placed near her at each date shows her telescopic appearance ot that time. When she is between the earth and the sun her unilluminated back is turned to us, and then, if she could be seen at all, she would appear as a round, black disk.

Now follow her around, as she slowly overtakes and passes the earth. At the beginning of April she was in the western evening sky, more than eighty million miles from the earth. Her outline was nearly that of a halfmoon.

May 1 she is beginning to take the crescent form, and is less than sixty million miles distant.

June 1 she seems to be rapidly approaching the sun, setting earlier each night, as she prepares to swing in between the earth and the sun. Her distance is reduced to about thirty-eight million miles. July 1 she comes between the earth and the sun, at a distance of a little less than twenty-seven million miles.

Then she disappears from the evening sky, to reappear later in the morning. By August 1 she has left the earth well behind, and takes the shape of a new moon again, but with its bow turned in the opposite direction. Her distance has now increased again to about thirty-eight million miles.

While we are admiring Venus in our evening sky, she is looking at us in her morning sky. But on July 1 the earth is in opposition to the sun as seen from Venus, and must glow with amazing brilliance in her midnight sky, while she is invisible to us.

Thirteen American Missionaries Are Still In Kwelin

Peking, June 26.—Despite the fact that the food supply is getting very low, thirteen American missionaries continue to hold out in the beleaguered city of Kwelin. The death of Joseph R. Cunningham is now confirmed by the American Consul at Changsha. Mr. Cunningham was killed by a stray bullet from the fighting on April 26, Mrs. Cunningham is now on her way to Chefoo.

Kwelin, which is in Kwangsi province, has been the scene of a military battle for close to two months with the result that the foreigners have been cut off from the outside. The following is a list of the Americans there now with the names of their missions:

Mr. and Mrs. Lampp-Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Miss M. C. Oppelt, Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Dr. R. E. L. Newshaw, wife and baby-Southern Baptist Convention Mission.

Mrs. Spencer, no record of mission.

Rev. R. L. Bausem and his mother, Southern Baptist Convention Mission.

Dr. B. D. Smith, wife and baby, Southern Baptist Convention Mission.

Miss Mattie V. Summer, Southern Baptist Convention Mission.

MILLICENT ROGERS QUITS COUNT VON SALM.

COUNT SALM — MILLICENT ROGERS — COLONEL H.H. ROGERS

The great Count Salm von Hoogstraeten-Millicent Rogers $40,000,000 romance is shattered. Millicent, bride of a few short months of the titled Austrian tennis player, with whom she eloped in New York, is on her way back to the United States with her father, Colonel H. H. Rogers, war hero, who inherited the vast estate of his father, the oil king. The Count remained in Europe. It is believed legal proceedings to end the marriage will be brought in New York.

A Communist Convention By Chester M. Wright

New York, May 30.—The concentric rings which make up the Communist machine in the United States are designed to bring under Communist control constantly enlarging bodies of Americans. The convention to be held in St. Paul on June 17 for the purpose of forming a new political party is to be a larger ring than the Reds have thus far possessed.

The present Red political machine is made up thus:

First—The Communist party formed for underground work and said by the Reds to have been "liquidated," but in reality still functioning and ready for whatever illegal work the Moscow general staff may think needed. This is open only to the most devout Communists and is affiliated to the Third or Communist International.

Second—The Workers' Party of America, affiliated to the Communist Internationale, and to which only Communists are admitted. All members of the Communist party are obliged to be members of the Worker's party, but all members of the Workers' party are not members of the Communist party.

Third—The Federated Farmer-Labor party, formed and officered by Communists, but taking in many non-Communists. This organisation is not affiliated with the Red Internationable, because it is not purely a Communist organisation.

The next step in enlarging Communist influence is to be taken at St. Paul on June 17.

STRATEGY

To understand the Communist strategy in thus forming organisations of semi-Communist character, it is necessary to consider the "united front" and "boring from within" policies.

The 'united front" policy is the official policy of international Communism. Its meaning is that Communists must become members of protesting or dissident groups everywhere and must unite with those groups in their protest, whatever it may be. Meanwhile, it is the Communist purpose in those groups to capture committee places and offices, in order that Communists may more and more intrench themselves in influence and more and more dominate the groups of which they become a part.

"Boring from within" is the complement policy. It means getting into organised groups for the purpose of spreading propaganda. Thus a Communist nucleus gets into a union, or into a political group, and carries on a steady fire of Red propaganda, being careful not to go so far as to bring about expulsion. The object, above all, is to remain inside. To create disaffection and distrust of leaders and officers is part of this organised effort. Scores of American unions are familiar with such operations. Operating along these lines the Communists hope now to control a formidable political party after the St. Paul convention.

DISARMING SUSPICION

In explaining the purposes of the June 17 convention to those whose support might be alienated if the Communist program were put too much in the foreground the Communist sponsors of the convention present their handiwork as merely a gathering together of unhappy farmers and wage earners, having no philosophy and hoping merely for a new political organisation which will more nearly represent their interests than any party now in the field.

From the publicity headquarters of the committee of arrangements for the June 17 convention a press statement was issued on April 9, this year, in the form of a response to charges of Communist control. In this statement the proposed convention was presented as a more or less harmless affair. It was stated that the meeting is to be "expressly a Farmer-Labor-Progressive convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President on a national third party ticket." It was set forth that invitations have been sent to more than 50,000 labor unions, farmers' organisations, minority political parties and "progressive" business and professional organisations.

"It is aimed," this press statement said, "to get representatives direct from the rank and file and to test out the sentiment of the people for fundamental changes in the operation of government. It is planned to have the voice of millions of voters reflected at the convention."

The eligibility of delegates is to be determined by their willingness to subscribe to five planks. These planks apparently represent the minimum degree of radicalism to which the Communists feel they can agree, and the maximum degree of radicalism to which they believe they can get disaffected non-Communists to agree. These five planks are as follows:

"(a) Government ownership of railroads.

"(b) Public ownership of natural resources.

"(c) Control of money and credits by the people through government and co-operative banks.

"(d) Restoration of civil rights guaranteed by the Constitution.

"(e) Abolition of the use of injunction in labor disputes and other judicial abuses."

A "CLASS" ORGANISATION

While the promoters of the June 17 convention thus use somewhat the language of moderation upon occasion, they nevertheless make clear at other times their revolutionary purpose. Joseph Manley, national secretary of the Federated Farmer-Labor Party, writing to the members of that party over his signature, declares that the object is "to organise a class Farmer-Labor party." He calls upon La Follette and other so-called progressives to "cut away from their present party affiliations and to join in this new class party movement." Manley calls upon members of the Federated Farmer-Labor party to join in the coming convention with all others "who suffer under the rule of the big capitalists and their government." He concludes his appeal with this sentence:

"Forward in the struggle which will bring the workers and farmers' government of the United States."

When the Communists talk of a class political party, they have in mind something very definite and something quite different from what might be envisioned by the average observer. The Communists can be thoroughly understood only by understanding their terminology and its meaning. With them a class organisation is a revolutionary organisation, the object of which is to bring about the overthrow of so-called bourgeois, or capitalist, governments, and the establishment of proletarian dictatorships.

A proletarian dictatorship is one in which only Communists have a voice and in which no minority is allowed to function. Under proletarian dictatorship, minorities are considered "counter-revolutionists" and are dealt with as such. That is what the Communist manipulators of the June 17 convention are aiming at.
